COME LEARN HOW A SIMPLE HEART TEST COULD SAVE YOUR LIFE

Doctors now use a quick and painless scan called a Calcium Score Test to check your heart health. It's done with a CT scan and helps spot early signs of heart disease—even before you feel any symptoms.

This test looks for calcium buildup (plaque) in the arteries that supply blood to your heart. The more calcium it finds, the higher your risk for a heart attack.

It's now a common and trusted way to:

- Catch heart problems early
- Decide if you might need medication like statins
- Understand your risk for future heart issues
- If you're curious about your heart health, this test could be a great first step.
